Media Alert: Follow Africa Adventure Consultants on New Safari Blog

DENVER, CO (April 29, 2009) – Africa Adventure Consultants today announces the launch of their new safari blog, found online at <http://www.adventuresinafrica.com/blog>. Now travelers have access to more and better travel information and resources to research, book and plan their African adventure online with Africa Adventure Consultants.

“Perhaps the most exciting aspect of our new safari blog is that we’re now able to quickly and regularly share news from Africa, whether it’s a new safari camp opening, late breaking news hot off a game drive or updates on our own travels across the continent, to help our clients plan, learn and anticipate their own upcoming African adventures,” said Kent Redding, President of Africa Adventure Consultants.

Redding, who travels to Africa several times annually to check out new properties and meet with the company’s safari guides, is preparing for a multi-generational family safari in Tanzania in May, including his wife, mother-in-law and two sons, both under the age of 6. Follow their preparation and travel on their new safari blog at: <http://www.adventuresinafrica.com/blog>. You can also follow up-to-the minute on Facebook (Kent Redding) and twitter @kentredding.

The rest of the Africa Adventure Consultants team is heading to Africa as well in May, so watch the safari blog for updates from Botswana and Malawi in the coming weeks.
